A Miraculous Escape.

[From the Philadelphia Press, April 12] The fertile imagination of the most sensational novelist or playwrighter seldom produces anything at all probable which has not its parallel in strict truth. We are now to tell a story of three cuties—Lewes (Del.) Philadelphia and New York which would be incredible were it not that our facts are obtained from wholly trustworthy sources. On the 11th of last month (March) Captain S. H. Mills, of New York city were drowned, or as it has since turned out, merely supposed to be drowned, at Lewes, Delaware. He fell overboard from his schooner. Upon the body being recovered and after every attempt to restore life had failed, it was placed in a coffin and then again in the usual outer box and shipped by Adams Express to the friends of the unfortunate man in New York city. It remained in Philadelphia from 6 p. m. to 1 a. m. Upon its arrival in New York the certificate of the Lewes, Del., doctor was discovered to be somewhat informal, and the advice of the Board of Health was asked. It was at last concluded to open the cases, and when this was done the man was found to be alive. The best medical aid was immediately called in, and it was ere long thought possible to remove the Captain to the Bellevue Hospital where he now is. He is not only doing well, but there is every probability of his speedy and permanent recovery.

How he existed confined within three airless casses passes comprehension. He was boxed up for thirty five hours, a length of time very few persons would care to attempt existence merely, without food or drink. [This is beyond belief.]

music. In a political revolution the bells were taken away to some distant land, and the maker himself became a refugee and exile. His wanderings brought him, after many years, to Ireland. On a calm and beautiful evening, as the vessel which bore him floated on the placid bosom of the Shannon, suddenly this evening chime pealed forth from the cathedral towers. llis experienced ear caught the sweet sounds, and he knew that his lost treasures were found. His early home, his friends, his beloved and native land, all the best associations of his life, wharf, but still he lay there silent and motionless. They spoke to him, but he did not answer. They went to him, but his spirit had fied. The tide of memories that came vibrating through his heart at that well-known chime

A GIRL'S DEVOTION. - The following passage occurred in Mr. Bartol's fast-day sermon

"I shall die of consumption," said a beautiful daughter, "in two years if I stay in this climate." "Does your father know it?" "I would not be seen to would for would not have him know it for the world, for it is for his sake I do it, as he needs me in his That was a fast from life itself worthy of the name—the self-denial and joyful sacrifice that God loves. The daughter died as she said. She once sat in yonder seat. The old man outlived her a score of years, and has at last just gone, scattering charities behind, showing that the unpretending James Savage was a good map.
